PREAMBLE

1. BACKGROUND AND RATIONALE FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE AFRICAN YOUTH COMMISSION

In recognition of the importance of youth participation and involvement in the development of the African continent, the African Union Commission in her wisdom to providing a way forward to the development of African youth, the AU developed a policy framework in the form of the Youth Charter. This policy prescribes responsibilities to Member States for the development of youth. The Youth Charter was adopted by the Heads of States at the Banjul Summit (July 2006), Gambia. The Youth Charter offers a framework, which emphasizes the rights, duties and freedom of youth, to Governments, Youth, Civil Society and International Partners. The key objective of the Youth Charter is to pave the way for the development of national programmes and the strategic plans for their empowerment. It also exist to ensure that there is constructive involvement of youth in the development agenda of Africa and their effective participation in the debates and decision making processes in the development of the continent.

The African Youth Charter (the Charter) is “convinced that Africa’s greatest resource is its youthful population and that through their active and full participation, Africans can surmount the difficulties that lie ahead.” It also acknowledges “the increasing calls and the enthusiasm of youth to actively participate at local, national, regional and international levels to determine their own development and the advancement of society at large.”¹ Taking into considerations also that the charter urges state parties to encourage “youth organizations to lead youth programmes and to ensure the exercise of their rights to development” and “facilitate the creation or strengthening of platforms for youth participation in decision-making at local, national, regional, and continental levels of governance.”²

In addition, Pan-African 2063 ASPIRATION (6) of An Africa where Development is People-Driven, Unleashing the Potential of its Women and Youth³ provides another promise yet to be realized.

While the promise is yet to be realized and the Charter having become one of the most ratified documents of the African Union, in practice, numerous obstacles exist that prohibit the implementation of the charter, and thereby the enjoyment of these rights as provided for under the Charter.

The African Youth Commission (AYC), formerly the African Union Youth Working Group (AU YWG), conceived in 2013 during Consultation with the Youth on the African Union Agenda 2063 held in Tunis, Tunisia at Hotel El Mouradi, Yasmine Hammamet, from the 1st to 4th November, under the theme “THE FUTURE WE WANT FOR AFRICA BY 2063”, organized by the African Union Commission in collaboration with the NEPAD Coordinating Agency (NPCA), the African Development Bank (AfDB) and the Economic Commission for Africa (ECA).

This youth gathering was in line with 8th edition of the African Youth Day celebration and the 50th Anniversary of the African Union (AU), under the themes “Youth United in Action for Agenda 2063” and “Pan Africanism and African renaissance”.

Among its vision as a Commission is to become the youth’s own version of the AUC, where all inspiring and capable young African leaders and African Diaspora can organize themselves, take up their responsibilities, strengthen cooperation among the youth and youth structures as a platform, speak up and promote youth voices in the context of Africa’s development through the Africa 2063 development aspirations.

The main objective of establishing the Commission is to organize all young people in Africa and Diaspora for the promotion of African unity and development through linkage of youth and youth structures and mobilization of resources (human, technical, technology and finance) to support the work of African youth, youth structures, Pan African Youth Union and Youth Division of the African Union Commission in their quest to effective service delivery and advocacy activities on the African Youth Charter, other AU legal instruments and youth projects at national, regional and continental levels for the advancement of Africa.
